Gallagher & Kennedy has filed suit to compel the Maricopa County Community College District (MCCCD) to produce its public records relating to data breaches compromising the private, confidential information of nearly 2.5 million students, applicants, parents, vendors and others. The information included names, addresses, phone numbers, e-mail addresses, Social Security numbers, dates of birth, demographic information, and as-yet-unspecified “enrollment, academic and financial aid information.” Gallagher & Kennedy served MCCCD with requests for access to and production of public records in an effort to investigate the incidents further, but MCCCD refused to produce a single document.
