

Gallagher & Kennedy

NATIVE AMERICAN LAW

The Native American Law team at Gallagher & Kennedy provides strategic legal advice to Native American tribes, tribal organizations and affiliated entities. As needed, we draw upon the collective experience of other Gallagher & Kennedy attorneys to address specific issues that may arise concurrently. The size and depth of experience of the firm allows us to meet the needs of our Native American clients through multifaceted legal services of the highest quality.

With years of experience working with Arizona's Native American tribes and entities, our attorneys are keenly aware of the unique history and culture specific to these Native American tribal communities. We work closely with our Native American clients to integrate the specific customs of tribal authorities into the working relationship.

We provide exceptional representation for tribal governments on matters related to sovereignty, economic development and governmental objectives. In addition, we represent tribal corporations and affiliated entities on a wide array of matters, from initial organizational structuring to complex transactions and litigation.
