

PROFESSIONAL LIABILITY

Gallagher & Kennedy's professional liability attorneys have substantial experience defending lawsuits and administrative proceedings against licensed professionals across many industries, including lawyers, medical professionals, accountants, auditors, real estate agents, and stockbrokers.

Seeking to protect and defend the rights of professionals, we counsel clients with respect to claims, potential claims, peer review processes, and administrative actions. Reaching successful outcomes for our clients in lieu of formal proceedings is always a priority. However, when a formal proceeding cannot be avoided, we possess the requisite experience, skill, and knowledge to defend our clients, be it in court, in front of an administrative agency, licensing board, or other governing body.

Our representative experience includes:

- Defense of lawsuits or ethical complaints against lawyers and accountants for alleged negligence or violations of professional standards.
- Defense of lawsuits or administrative hearings on claims against real estate agents that they violated professional duties.
- Defense of doctors and other health care professionals in actions by hospitals against their medical privileges, and by the Arizona Medical Board and other regulatory agencies with respect to their licenses.
- Defense of accountants during licensing and disciplinary proceedings, investigations, and appeals.

Our attorneys also assist individuals and entities with professional licensing and credentialing by efficiently navigating the various processes and special requirements ascribed by professional governing bodies. Our collective experience in licensing and credentialing extends to investigations surrounding disputes and their resolution through hearings, disciplinary proceedings, and appeals.
