AGRICULTURE

Gallagher & Kennedy attorneys understand many of the unique aspects of agricultural operations and how to effectively represent agricultural interests. We have assisted dairy, ranch, farm, and greenhouse operators with environmental permitting, rulemaking, and regulatory litigation. We have worked with a number of agricultural trade associations and other associations of conservation districts and other organizations.

In addition, we have represented fertilizer and pesticide manufacturers, and biotechnology groups involved in agriculture. For example, we have represented, and continue to represent, several fertilizer manufacturers in national, high-profile U.S. Environmental Protection Agency enforcement initiatives under the air and hazardous waste laws and regulations. Our experience in the agricultural arena, combined with our related experience, equips us to address most any agricultural regulatory issue.
