

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW

PUBLIC BIDDING AND PROCUREMENT ADMINISTRATIVE COMPLIANCE

Gallagher & Kennedy's public bidding and procurement attorneys assist you in complying with the government's often complex requirements, enabling you to focus on preparing your bid or proposal to meet your business objectives and directly respond to the unique aspects of the request for proposal (RFP).

Each government entity, from the federal government, to states, counties, cities and school districts, has its own laws and regulations concerning public bidding and procurement, including registration requirements, notification procedures and timelines. Those requirements are more than just "technical" — and a failure to comply with the specific procurement laws, processes and guidelines could mean disqualification from an application.